Sixteen Named For Council, as Compared With Nineteen Last Year—John S. Smit Given Acclamation by Medicine—Scarlet Key to Hold Elections For Classes "A" And "B" at Same Time.

Sixteen nominations for faculty representatives on the Students' Executive Council and forty-three nominations for the Scarlet Key Society were received up to noon yesterday. The number nominated for the Council is three less than last year when nineteen were proposed. Of the forty-three named for the Scarlet Key Society, twenty-nine are for Class "A" and fourteen for Class "B."

Only One Acclamation

The Students' Council had only one acclamation. This was received from Medicine, John S. Smit, being the sole nominee from that faculty. Arts, Commerce and Applied Science had each three nominees while Law, Dentistry and Theology had two nominees each. One representative is to be elected from each of the last six faculties named.

Five faculties namely Arts, Commerce, Law, Science, and Dentistry require representation in Class "A" of the Scarlet Key Society. Sixteen men are to be elected out of the twenty-nine nominated, four each from Arts, Commerce and Science and two each from Law and Dentistry. For Class "B" eight vacancies are to be filled, two from each of Arts, Medicine, Commerce and Science.

Those nominated for the Students' Executive Council were:—Medicine—John S. Smit; Science—James Gordon King, A. H. Watier, C. E. Parish, Commerce—G. M. Bell, G. E. Craig, Hugh McCuaig; Arts—R. M. Anderson, D. V. Hamilton, K. G. Baker; Theology—S. L. Pollard, R. D. Smith; Law—A. J. Edmison, S. Hayes; Dentistry—Arthur Donohue, Clarence Vosberg.

Supper During Tournament In R.V.C. Next Week

At the meeting of the M. W. S. Badminton Club next week, which will be held on Wednesday, November 26th, the playing will be devoted entirely to tournaments.

Instead of arriving at 7 p.m. as is usual on Wednesday evenings the members are asked to come to the Convocation Hall at 4 p.m. where they will play until 6 o'clock, when supper will be served. Play will commence again at 7 and the tournaments will continue until 10. The object of this is that every member may be able to take part in the contests, and the executive of the club hope that there will be a good turnout.

Supper will be served at a nominal fee, and those intending to participate are asked to sign the lists which are posted in the Arts Building and in the R.V.C. before Monday when they will be taken down.

Ancient Clan War Claims Scotch 'Varsity Victims

The grand old tradition of the Highland clans of Scotland has survived in one of the yearly ceremonies of the University of Aberdeen when, during rectorial elections the students of the University form two teams and wage a battle royal with ancient eggs, out-of-date tomatoes and paper bags filled with flour. Every year some distinguished outsider is named Rector of Marischal College in the University and at the close of the induction ceremonies the fun begins. A party of students raises a banner, seizes some strategic position such as the steps of the college and, with the flag waving aloft in the breeze, they defy anyone to dislodge them. Immediately an opposing party is drawn up. Led by some gallant

American Graduate Society Sympathetic With Loss Of Dr. Mackay

H. R. Dowswell, Science '03, was the guest-speaker at the Annual Meeting of the New York Graduate Society of McGill University held last Friday in the Biltmore Hotel, New York. Mr. Dowswell is a member of the firm of architects which was commissioned to design the Empire State building, the highest in the world. This immense structure towers for almost a quarter of a mile into the air and dominates the skyline of New York.

The extensive use of aluminum and chrome nickel steel and the unearthing of a suitable cooking material covers some of the work on the building for which Mr. Dowswell was directly responsible. He conducted extensive experiments with chrome-nickel steel until he was satisfied that it was rust-resisting and fulfilled all requirements or purposes to which it was put. Mr. Dowswell also assisted the devising of another innovation in commercial office building construction, making the innumerable windows integral parts of the wall and constructing them flush with the stone facing.

Is Enormously Large

The building covers a total ground area of 85,000 square feet and has a rentable area of two million square feet, comprising 80 stories. From the ground floor to the top it measures 1045 feet. Numerous elevators provide vertical transportation and rise as the rate of 1200 feet per minute. The estimated population in the building will be some 20,000, and the total cost of the structure will be between 25 and 30 million dollars.

Expresses Sympathy

The Graduate Society of New York boasts of a membership of 75, including graduates of all faculties in McGill University. The President, F. H. Bacon, recalled in his opening remarks, the passing of the late Dr. Mackay, mentioning the affection which all students had for the late Dean and paying tribute to one of McGill's outstanding figures. On motion the secretary was instructed to forward a resolution expressing the Society's deep regret to the widow of Dr. Mackay. A similar resolution was ordered to be sent to the wife of (Continued on Page Two)

Indian Students At Poets School Discipline Selves

Sir Rabindranath Tagore Leads Youth of India To High Ideals

Sir Rabindranath Tagore, distinguished Hindu scholar, poet and mystic gave up the seclusion and rest of a houseboat on the Ganges, where he spent his time in meditation, and in composing poetry, to come into the open to establish an institution where the youth of India could be educated upon such lines as to do themselves and the nation the greatest good. Mr. Ariam Williams, private secretary to Sir Rabindranath, and headmaster of the primary and secondary departments of the School, declared yesterday afternoon at Strathcona Hall.

Faulty Education

Mr. Williams, who is spending a short time in this city, declared that the education of young Indians was not along any practical lines and that the students were lost when they came into the world. The fault lay in the early education rather than in the university, and he determined to try to improve matters by striking at the system in the primary and secondary schools. Thus he approached the poet and obtained a post in his school.

The lecturer declared that Tagore was the central personality in the organization of the institution. All work centres around him and from him comes all inspiration. It is through him that the idea of the absence of corrective discipline was brought into practice, and that the pupils were given complete self-government. There is no attempt made to force the students to stay in one spot through a lecture period, nor is there any (Continued on Page Two)

Novel Musicales Slated Sunday

C. De Ville And H. Norris Present Viola Concert

Viola recitals are very rare in this city, and the opportunity to hear one should not be allowed to pass without those interested taking advantage of it. Mr. Harry Norris and Mr. Claude De Ville, both of the Faculty of Music, will give a viola and pianoforte recital tomorrow evening at nine o'clock, in the Moyse Hall. This is one of the series of Sunday night concerts that, for the past few weeks, have been given by the Faculty of Music.

Both Mr. Norris, and Mr. De Ville have appeared before in previous concerts, the former, last week in the String Quartette, and the latter in the first recital of the series.

The program is divided into three numbers, the first two being for viola and pianoforte, and the third for viola only. The numbers are as follows: Sonata for viola and pianoforte by Arnold Bax. (1) Molton Moderato. (2) Allegro energico (3) Molto lento.

Suite for viola and pianoforte by Benjamin Dale. (1) Maestoso. (2) Romance.

Minnelied ..... Brahms Abendlied ..... Schumann Saravande and Tambourin .. Leclair. The McGill Wind Quintet will give the concert next Sunday evening.

Tells of Visit To Far East

Dr. Best Impressed by Officialism in Japan

Impressions received in his travels in the East last year when he was representing the International foreign department of the Y.M.C.A. and the Y.W.C.A. were described in an address by Dr. E. Best at the meeting of the Sociological Society. He told of the plans of the International Survey, "The East was his territory. In Japan he said he was impressed with the officialism which seemed so prominent. "But" he said "you cannot have any kind of liberty which is not based on law and order."

Dr. Best told how he was granted a year's absence to represent the foreign department of the Y.M.C.A. and the Y.W.C.A. He along with other representatives went to Geneva where they studied the situation. They planned to set up a group of elsewhere.

Professor Scott Outlines Functions of Government

PUBLIC PROTECTED

Control of Private Enterprise by Boards is Recent Development

"Canada lacks a journal of unbiased political opinion, hence ignorance of governmental matters is widespread throughout the Dominion", stated Frank Scott, Professor of Constitutional Law at McGill, lecturing to the newly formed Citizens' Association Forum of Notre Dame de Grace last night on the scope and form of government in Canada.

Professor Scott emphasised the fact that government has a far larger scope than mere politics. It consists of the legislative or political section; the administrative part, which includes the civil service and the various commissions, and the judicial section which interprets the law.

Public Utilities Controlled

The speaker traced out the gradual growth of the government's control over matters that once were considered private business, and dates from the industrial revolution. Public utilities are either owned and operated by the state, as in the case of the Canadian National Railways, or are private enterprises controlled by boards or commissions, as the C.P.R. is by the Board of Railway Commissioners. Future developments of this are the control of radio, and ultimately, the control of world trade by some international body. "These bodies must contain experts, and they must be free (Continued on Page Four)

Features High Spots In Music

Montreal Orchestra to Present Famous Competitions

Featuring many well known compositions in their program, the Montreal Orchestra will hold another of their weekly concerts tomorrow afternoon at three o'clock in the Orpheum Theatre. These concerts have, in the past been quite successful, and the orchestra can fairly well be assured of permanence.

In past concerts, individual numbers have been slightly spoiled by untimely applause after each movement. The public who attend are now being urged to restrain their enthusiasm until the end of the composition being played, and will be rewarded by the better continuity of the music.

Four numbers, as usual, constitute the program, which is as follows:

1. Hungarian Dances (Nos. 1, 3, and 10). Brahms.
2. Symphony No. 3 (Eroica) Op. 55 (a) Allegro con Brlo, (b) Marcia Funebre, (c) Scherzo, (d) Finale. Beethoven.
3. Danza—Piemontese N. 1 Op. 31. Shubert.
4. Suite—L'Arlesienne. (a) Prelude (b) Minuet, (c) Adagetto, (d) Carillon. Bizet.

He visited both Japan and China. Dr. Best was impressed with the beauty of Japan and the courtesy and honesty of the people. He found that the Japanese have a great thirst for knowledge and that they have books which are most difficult to obtain.

Second Showing Of "Ivory Door" Meets Approval

Daily Critic Finds Play Poor Vehicle For Club's Efforts

PLOT STEREOTYPED

Character Actors Capture Sympathy of Entire Audience With Portrayals

By R. Levine

Moyse Hall was crowded as the curtain was raised on last night's performance of "The Ivory Door" by the university Players' Club. The more pointed ironical sallies and witty gestures were greeted with laughter and whispered commendations. The applause after the final curtain was prolonged.

These were the outward manifestations of approval or courtesy observable in others. If it be true, as the program says that Milne's plays "possess an almost universal appeal" I must confess that I am in that group beyond the "almost." The play is clearly a mixture of an Andersen fairy tale and a few imitations of Oscar Wilde epigrams, with the sting carefully taken out, all compounded to make up the three thousand two hundred and fifty seventh sentimental satire about the institution of monarchy. It is surely not the first time we have heard of the simple hearts emperors and kings possess, of the desire of their subjects to invest them with a gale of superiority and make their life miserable thereby, and of that ivory door which leads to the Simple Life.

Clearly, the players were not able to show their powers to the best advantage. One cannot work well with feeble material. Secondly, the largeness of the cast did not permit any individual actor to realize his or her (Continued on Page Two)

Exercise Must Be Corrective Means

Physical Educator Needs Interest of Pupils in Work

"All exercise should be corrective exercise," was the claim of Mr. Fradd of the Physical Education Department of Harvard University in a lecture Wednesday to the Quebec Physical Educational Association at R. V.C. To be a successful physical instructor one must have the interest of one's pupils and create an enthusiasm for what one is trying to accomplish and efficiency can only be obtained if it is considered a twenty-four hour job, he continued.

The instilling of good balance habits in children is just as necessary as teaching them correct grammar in school is the opinion of the speaker. The old idea of throwing back one's shoulders to obtain good posture is wrong; it not only results in a tense position but increases orosis, or abnormal bend in the back. The shoulder girdle should be lifted by elevating the chest. So many people are fat at forty instead of fit at forty due to improper posture.

Mr. Fradd pointed out that when one has the interest of one's class seventy-five per cent of the work is done. The director, he said is looked up to as a model, and so each one should make a study of himself in order to attain perfection as such.

The speaker showed illustrations of correct and incorrect posture, describing what can be accomplished by postural education.

Montreal Rationalists Hear "God Explained"

"God Explained" will be the title of address given by the Montreal Rationalist Association. The meeting will take place at 1223 Dorchester St. W. at 3 p.m. on Sunday, November 23rd. This lecture is open to the public and questions and discussion will feature at the end of the meeting.

The Rationalist Association counts among its members such world-wide known personalities as: Mr. Arnold Bennett, Prof. John Dewey, Mr. J.B.S. Haldane, Mr. Julian Huxley, Mr. Leonard Huxley, Sir Arthur Keith, Mr. Chalmers Mitchell and Prof. Patton.

College Faces Lack Of Trees In Near Future

DUE to the fact that the trees surrounding the McGill campus are slowly dying because of the escape of poisonous gases from pipes immediately below the roots there faces the University the prospect of the removal of the trees. They have been a feature of the campus ever since the University was founded and some of them are undoubtedly the last survivors of the forests which used to cover the spot. Although they add much to the beauty of the College and have become, in fact, a tradition of the place yet they will have to be cut down unless some measures are taken to prevent the escape of gas or unless some treatment can be given them to annul the effects of the poison. Attempts made to treat them last year were unsuccessful.

Many Present at "The Dover Road"

Female Impersonation Was Particular Feature

EIGHTH PRODUCTION

Westmount Thespians Successfully Presented A. A. Milne's Play Last Night

Victoria Hall was jammed to the doors last evening, when the Westmount Thespians presented A. A. Milne's "The Dover Road" as their eighth annual production. A particular feature of the performance was female impersonation for the Club is compose entirely of men, the majority of whom are McGill students.

The plot of Milne's well-known farce centres around an elderly gentleman called Latimer, whose particular hobby it is to prevent the consummation of unhappy marriages. To accomplish his end, he keeps up a sort of hotel, just off the Dover Road over which eloping couples must travel to seek transportation to France. He devises a means by which the guilty pairs must stop at his hostelry and there keeps them captive for a week. Here they get a touch of married life, which tests their ability to endure conjugal life.

The leading feminine role was brilliantly portrayed by Billy Walker, an outstanding female impersonator, who played the part of Anne to perfection. The eccentric Latimer was very ably presented by Buchanan Rolitt, Arts '31, and his classmate, Wilson Becket, took the part of Leonard. Doug Hamilton as Eustasia, and Selwyn Willis, both Arts men turned out fine feminine characters, while Hugh Tringham, Arts Junior and Ted Slade played Nicholas and Dominic respectively. Others in the cast included Donald Turner, Ralph Pepper, Roy Malcoumne and Hector Wayne.

George Kington's McGill Band supplied the music for the dance which followed.

Rifle Club In D.C.R.A. Match

McGill Shoots For University Championship Tomorrow

The McGill Rifle Club will fight for the D.C.R.A. inter-university title tomorrow. Last year McGill came second in the Dominion, led only by University of Manitoba. Out of a possible of 1000 points, McGill scored 890.

Each team shoots on its own range. McGill at the range at Point-aux-Trembles, a few miles north-east of Montreal. The match is shot at three different ranges, 200, 400, and 600 yards, each man shooting seven shots on each range. The highest eight scores count for deciding the aggregate score of the team. In the event of a tie, the team having a better score on the long ranges is judged the winner. Last year five McGill men were among the 13 highest individual scorers throughout Canada.

All members of the club will meet at Strathcona Hall at 8 a. m. Major O'Connor is the umpire at the match. It is hoped that all interested will turn out.

Evangelical Christian Union

"Prayer" What is said of it in the Bible" will be the topic for the Bible Study Group. The members will meet at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the Music Room of the McGill Union.

Second Informal Of Season Goes Over With Bang

Annual Photographer Startles Guests With Explosion of Flash

GOOD MUSIC

Miss Ray Moore, of Frolics Cabaret, Entertains With Songs

A loud bang, sounding very much like a cannon shot followed by smoke that enveloped completely the large hall and startled half the dancers almost out of their shoes was merely one of the many interesting features of the second Union Informal held last night in the McGill Union. It was thought that the C.O.T.C. were out on the rampage, however, it turned out to be merely an enterprising photographer set to obtain pictures of college life for the Annual.

About 200 guests attended the dance. At first it seemed that there would be a very small group there, but a fairly large influx was seen about 11:15 when the presentation of the "Ivory Door" concluded. Mrs. Vaughn and Miss Herriott were the patronesses.

Ray Moore Dances

The proceedings were enlivened by Miss Ray Moore of the Frolics Cabaret who sang, to much applause, two popular songs. Isadora Aspler and his orchestra furnished red hot rhythm for the dancers. The dance broke up about 1:30, and so to bed.

McGill to Send Display to Show

Calendar And Views To Be Sent To Argentina

McGill, along with several other well-known Canadian universities, has been requested by the Canadian Government Exhibition Commission of the Department of Trade and Commerce to send some displays of the Canadian Pavilion of the Exhibition of British Arts and Industries at Buenos Ayres, Argentina. This exhibition is to be held some time in March, and is to consist entirely of various industrial and other institutions throughout the Empire.

In accordance with this request, several departments of the University have decided to send exhibits. The Registrar's office will send a number of its official publications, such as calendars, etc. The Library is sending down an exhibition of which one side includes several views of the Redpath Library, the Osler Library, the Library School, the Medical Library, and the Gest Chinese Research Library. The other side consists of a number of McGill University Publications apart from those mentioned above. Among these are works by various prominent figures, such as Sir Arthur Currie, Lt.-Col. Bovey, Dean A. S. Eve, Dr. D. A. Keys and others.

The Department of Extra-Mural Relations has also prepared a display. This includes a large painting of the University, eight feet by four, and a set of a dozen large photographs to supplement it. The photographs give various views of the Campus, the Stadium, and Macdonald College.

Louis C. Gonzalez, a McGill graduate in Applied Science, has written a pamphlet in Spanish setting forth briefly the history of the university, of which some thousands will be sent down and distributed.

Current Controversy

IF there is one thing which marks the present-day student as a being apart from his academic predecessors, it is the interest which he takes in current controversy and the popular problems of the moment. A hundred years ago education consisted largely of an intimate knowledge of the classics, coupled with a critical appreciation of literature. This comprised education; and interest in affairs at large was left in abeyance until the neophyte advanced to his professional studies.

Today things are decidedly different. From entrance to the university as a freshman until graduation, current controversy is as much a part of university training as any class-room study. It is true, of course, that today we have more opportunity for such discussion than was the case in the days before the commencement of great newsgathering agencies; but at the same time a corresponding change in the conception of education has done more to bring undergraduates out of their mental retirement than any altering of facilities which may have taken place. A university today, teaches not only classics, history and literary appreciation but also more practical subjects which bring one of necessity into touch with what is actually happening.

Today, in smoking-rooms and student gathering places, conversation turns not on Pericles and the value of his Funeral Oration, but on the legitimacy of the British policy in Palestine; or on the success of the United States of Soviet Russia; or on Mussolini; or on war debts; or on United States gold reserves; or on the troubles of India. Everywhere youth is coming into contact with the larger sphere of world politics.

There is no sign of the trend of events more striking than the readiness with which students go to hear lecturers whose topics would have been of interest only to the parliamentarian or the political busy-body a few years ago. Recently a woman of India spoke at the Peoples' Forum. Yesterday, Mr. Ariam Williams had occasion to point out several reasons why her speech cannot be taken as a sound opinion on the Indian situation. Large bodies of students attended both gatherings and having heard both sides of the question, are now presumably actively engaged in formulating their own opinions. And so it goes. Youth is everywhere preparing itself to take over and revise policies which it has reason to doubt.

In commenting on the present political arrangements with regard to war Sir James Barrie once remarked that old men make trouble and young ones are called upon to get them out of their scrape. If the present trend continues young men will soon be in a position to play a larger part in government than they have in the past; and if no other good ensues they will at least do something to counteract the senility which often misleads the course of legislation today.

Are Students Efficient?

EMPLOYERS of undergraduates during the summer months have, at times, complained of their inefficiency. There are concerns which hesitate to employ even graduates for the same given reason. It may well be doubted that college men fail to give a good account of themselves when they have left school long enough to acquire some of the vigour and aggressiveness which characterises modern business, but an appraisal of the scholastic record of students taken as a whole is not very reassuring to an employer.

Students come to college presumably for the purpose of getting an education. While it is true that a degree of itself does not guarantee that its possessor is educated, yet it is the only tangible sign of four years' exertion that many carry away from college. It is something to aim at.

The number of those that drop by the wayside between their Freshman and Senior years would seem to indicate that student efficiency is decidedly low. Moreover, a good many of those that finally receive their degree leave behind them a trail of supplemental examinations.

The affairs of the world proceed with a reasonable degree of efficiency which we have been led to expect. The newspaper is always at the door in the morning along with the milk bottle, mail is delivered regularly and with marvelously few mistakes, trains arrive and depart to the second. Students at the task of learning are expected to make just as efficient a job of it as others do at their daily employment. If banks, for instance, failed in the same proportion as do college students the present economic depression would seem like a wave of unparalleled prosperity.

It may be, as has been claimed, that scholastic ability is no true indication of worth, but the fact remains that graduates are judged by prospective employers upon their record. Those going into industry and business will be expected to perform efficiently tasks just as distasteful to them as any they may meet in the course of their college career.

ALLSORTS

TWO LINES

HE—to blind date—it really was awfully sweet of you to come. (I wish I had had the sense to stay at home. This girl looks to me like a waste of time.)

SHE—Oh, George has been telling me all about you, and I was awfully keen to come when he phoned. (I hope that sounds more convincing than I feel.)

HE—I've heard a lot about you too. (Just what have I heard about her? Is she the basketball star? No, that was the first one we phoned.) But I want to hear about you first hand, so to speak. (That's neat enough.)

SHE—Oh, but I'd much rather hear about you. (Surely he doesn't think I'm dumb enough to talk about myself.)

HE—Well where shall I start? (She's really not so bad after all.)

SHE—Why at the beginning, of course.

HE—But I don't want to bore you.

SHE—You couldn't bore me! I can see that you must have had an awfully interesting life because you're so different from other men.

HE—Yes I guess I'm not like other fellows. Sometimes when they're fooling and cutting up at the house I wonder how they keep it up. It seems so futile.

SHE—Probably that's just because you're deeper than the other lads.

HE—You're clever to be able to see that right away. I have a feeling that you're an understanding sort of person. You must be or you wouldn't be able to see those things so quickly.

SHE—Well, perhaps I am gifted that way. But anyone could see that you are out of the ordinary—I don't mean queer or anything you know—just different.

HE—I guess you're right. Shall we dance?

SHE—Let's.

Gilbert Miller, the producer, does not seem to think a great deal of Mr. Edgar Wallace's plays. While the producer was sponsoring a show in London the prolific playwright asked for complimentary seats to the piece. Through some mistake at the box office Mr. Wallace did not receive the tickets, so he wrote Mr. Miller a curt note informing him of the fact. The producer promptly replied that the error was indeed regrettable as he had no intention of keeping Mr. Wallace out of his theatre—only Mr. Wallace's plays.

A vote of thanks is due the traffic commission, or whatever organization of civic improvement is responsible for the safety zone on Sherbrooke Street just outside the Gates. Taxi drivers have enough fun in life without raising the mental hazard of the harassed student.

Having tried to do some shopping on Saturday afternoon our sympathy was aroused for the devoted father of nine children who has to take each child out separately on successive Saturdays to buy his Christmas presents for the other eight. Unfortunately he made the mistake of taking the girls first, and now, just as he thinks that he has half the family settled, they've changed their minds as to what they want to give.

CORRESPONDENCE

The Editor,
McGill Daily.

Dear Sir,

Really, my dear man, you startled me. I almost thought there was an intelligent person writing to the Daily about me. However, I soon got over that as I read on. Quite a scare at first though. Your correspondent, Pepelios, so utterly and obviously the woman, challenges my statement that the cerebral equipment of females is inferior to that of males, and indicates Wassermann.

Out of a total of 29 brains, I have dissected 19 female ones. I have found a regular relative deficiency in the supragranular layers of the female cerebral cortices as compared with the males. Further, I have found a marked deficiency of cerebrum in the frontal regions—get that through your skull, you female—in the frontal regions of the brains of your sex. Not just a deficiency, a deficiency in the frontal regions. Any two year old male child knows what these two facts mean, my lady. See if you can't grasp their significance.

And B. M. R.! Really dear child! Do you think Newton evolved his theories on the run while working up a nice big B. M. R. before breakfast? Is Einstein a jazz-baby? Every fool knows that B. M. R. and I. Q. are independent, if not inverse, functions. And as for m. y. o. b., why, m. y. o. b. And as perhaps you have now grasped the fact that the deficiency in females is localized, surface area and weight do not come into the matter, you will grant.

Furthermore, I was at one time consulting psychologist to one of our local employment bureaux. In this capacity, I had an opportunity of giving intelligence and ability tests to all classes of both sexes. The results showed the inevitable. Females flopped every time. I can show actual figures to anyone interested. It was here, as a matter of fact, that I first acquired that contempt of women which has been the brightest guiding star in my brilliant career.

Has a woman ever done anything that a man could not or has not done better?

I suspect, dear lady, that you once attended a lecture in psychology and it went to your head.

As a youth, I lived among some very charming ladies. Very few of them (perhaps we were a bit old fashioned in those days) made it a point to publish the fact that they were familiar with salvarsan and mercury. Of course it is a great attraction to tourists in the summer.

Yours, &c.,
GANDALAC.

The Editor,
McGill Daily.

Dear Sir,

"Africa Speaks" claimed as an authentic record of an unprecedented adventure of a "noted explorer and student of anthropology" and his co-adventures, certainly has thrilled the world and scored a hit. It is remarkable, because it shows something that has never been attempted before—casting of a human being to a beast. Take away that thrilling yet heart-rendering scene, the picture presents nothing new and out of ordinary. As a matter of fact I can remember no animal or strange people in the picture that I haven't seen in other pictures either motion or animate. In regard to the main attraction of that picture I like to call the attention of you readers to the following points.

1. The heroes of the picture or rather of the adventure, who were shown monkeying with a camera within fifty yards from the lion, had no just apparent reason to send the native boy unprotected for the rifles, unless it was for the sake of saving their own lives by luring the lions away with a piece of human flesh thrown into the open. At close range revolvers afford better protection than rifles. (Of course I take for granted that every explorer is a moderately good shot.) It is unbelievable on the other hand, that an explorer could have forgotten his firearms on a prepared occasion to meet the fiercest animals.

2. The fact that the screaming of the poor boy was distinctly registered through the microphone and that his agony was brought so close to our eyes makes it evident that the nonchalant cameraman, who by the way must be well armed, was very near to the scene of the tragedy. With whatever he was armed he could easily save the victim. Anything within range for a camera must be so for a rifle.

3. The camera man instead of photographing the heroes whose lives were apparently in danger, turned his attention to the native boy. Was he not anticipating something spectacular to happen to the boy when the latter was sent? Was the victim not sent for some purpose other than to fetch the firearms?

In other words, they have suffered to see a man left to the mercy of and finally devoured by a beast when a little effort could have saved him. Nay, they have sacrificed him in order that the world's craze for thrill can temporarily be gratified. Hoofed and a handful of others can be made heroes and some firm can make a little fortune. Well, the public is thrilled and dubs them heroes. The papers which have always been on the alert to take exception to opinions expressed by others, have joined to praise their accomplishment and have acceded whatever they have claimed. In the full flush of glory and in the midst of their laurels the heroes are apt to forget the boy who had made the sacrifice. In its admiration for their unquenchable courage and indefatigable desire for adventure the public has overlooked the fact that to the civilized world they still owe an explanation for an act which to my sense of justice is revolting.

Sir, if you haven't seen the picture, "see it by all means," and tell me what your impression is.

Very truly yours,
S. S. K.

Editor,
McGill Daily.

Dear Sir:

I wish to offer a few critical remarks on the above editorial. From my point of view, it is extremely thoughtless and superficial and might well lead to what I consider disastrous consequences.

Let us take for granted your statements that suicide is commoner with the practical, the unsentimental, the educated, and the logical, than with the uneducated, the flighty, superstitious and inconsistent it would seem obvious that the former class would be a greater loss to the community and one which the community cannot afford.

It is not true that suicide is less common among the melancholies, in fact I would say that probably from 95 to 98% of those who commit suicide are suffering from a morbid emotional depressive condition which in its nature is temporary.

Medical science has not yet found the cause of such morbid depression, but it is possible that they may be on a biochemical basis.

Frequently on recovery from such depression, these individuals show an interesting mental change with exaltation of pleasant emotional reactions, an increased mental buoyancy, and a greater capacity for productive mental and physical activity, which brings them into the class of people who do things in the world.

In view of the number of suicides among young people in educational institutions, which seems to go in waves through the country, your editorial seems to me very ill advised and unhealthy, and would tend to suggest such ideas to people who are temporarily worried or morbidly upset.

Yours truly,
Colin Russel, M.D.

LATIN AT ITS LIGHTEST

The Daily has received from Dr. Stephen Leacock the witty and ingenious Latin verses which appear below. They were written in regard to a statement made in the press by Dr. Leacock, in which he said that the currency expansion, advocated by Dr. Robert Eisler of Vienna, as a cure for industrial depression, was about as valuable as the use of rum as a cure for melancholy;—it is all right as long as you can keep it up. The composer of the verses, Mr. C. A. Jackson, of the staff of Selwyn House School certainly establishes the fact that Latin is anything but a dead language.

Res Adversae et Remedium

"Fit mercator iners? nil contrahit inest iniqui?
Certa tamen tanti stat medecina mali."
Eisler ait, "Flat nummorum copia major!

character and to portray it satisfactorily. As happens nearly in all amateur productions "queer" characters were grasped more fully. The best piece of acting last night, and that which pleased the audience most, was that of Phyllis Lyth in the role of the nurse Anna. Boronow, as the Chancellor, acquitted himself creditably although the pained movements he affected were too timed to appeal real. Had not Yulle relapsed too often into declamatory speeches he would have been more convincing. Miss Perigard distinguished herself among the women in the cast. Miss Noad looked beautiful.

The settings were not a credit to the teachings of Gordon Craig from whom the ideas were admittedly borrowed. I surely did not expect to see another variation of the eternal stair scene but my fond hopes were duly shattered.

Had the Player's Club selected a better play—one a trifle more intelligent—and worked upon it they would undoubtedly have made a better showing.

neglect of their physical needs. Each student is required to spend part of the day in some form of manual labour, and to take part in sports.

School Coeducational

The school is coeducational, and both boys and girls are treated in the same manner. Discipline is the same and they are all expected to participate in sports, including Jujitsu.

The children are encouraged to write and perform in plays, which are acted in a little theatre erected by the students themselves. As well they are taught music and give concerts under the presidency of the poet.

They have at the school the finest international library in India. There are volumes in it in most European tongues, as well as in the different languages of India. There have been donations made by several European governments, and presentations are being made by organizations in Canada and the United States.

Cosmopolitan Staff

The staff at the school includes natives and Europeans. All of them live simple lives, and are judged by their work they do rather than by externals, most of them have either American or English educations, and possess degrees from well-known universities. The European members of the staff come from Russia, Switzerland, Ireland and Holland.

The success or failure of the institution in the future lies in the truth or lack of truth of the poet's ideals, declared the speaker in conclusion. Sir Rabindranath himself has said that if they are true the work will live on, and if false it will die, and in this case, the sooner it dies, the better.

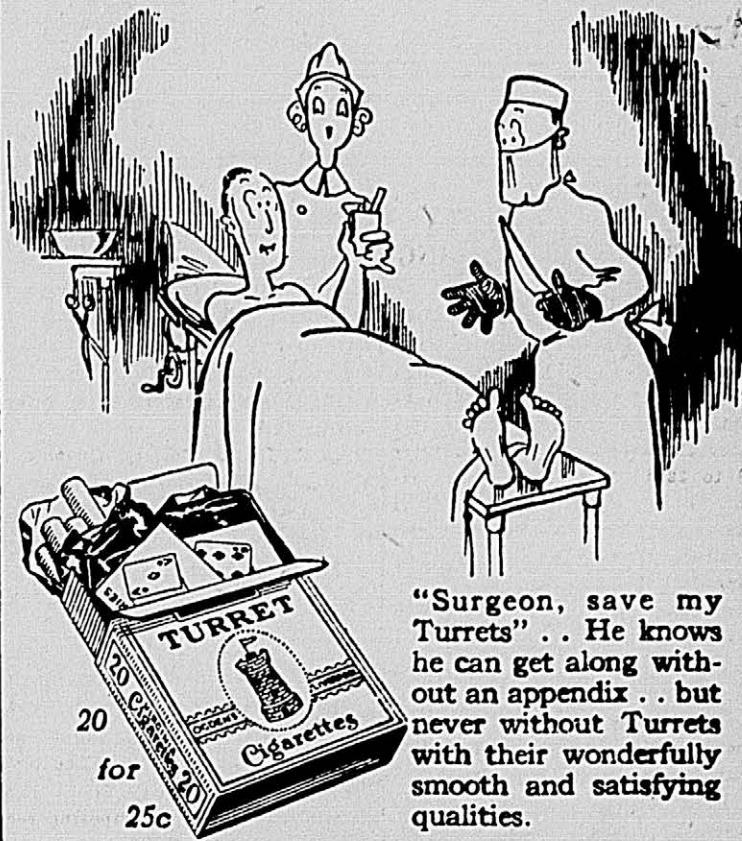

The address was illustrated by a large number of lantern slides, and was followed by a question period.

Frosh Swimmers' Defeat Sophs in Annual Tank Meet

Bob Brophy Breaks Record As His Team Wins 29 to 22

GRIFFITHS WINS DIVING

IN spite of the late decision of those in charge to declare men in First Year Science, but spending their second year at the University, to be sophomores, the freshmen swimmers defeated the sophomores by the score of 29 to 22 in the annual meet between the two classes at the K. of C. pool yesterday afternoon. Only one college record fell, Bob Brophy clipping 4/5 of a second from Gordon Poole's mark of 27 1/5 seconds set in February, 1928.

Little material was discovered which had not been known of before, with the possible exception of Johnson, who swam a fair two lengths of backstroke to come in second behind Doug Cross. The divers, too, had been more or less of an unknown quantity, though Harry Griffiths' form as a youngster was remembered by some. He showed that he has not deteriorated with age at all, and looks like a worthy successor to Mort Gibbons.

Meet Served, As Trial

The meet was supposed to serve to a certain extent as a trial for the dual meet which is being held with M.A.A.A. at the Wheelers' tank next Wednesday night. In addition several trials are yet to be held for upper-class swimmers who could not take part in yesterday's meet, but who are likely prospects for the dual meet team.

One of these time trials was held in between races yesterday afternoon, Bill Sprenger and Munroe Bourne matching speed in a fifty yards dash, and finishing right close together down near 25 flat. Considering the fact that the intercollegiate fifty was won in 26 1/5 last year, this looks rather promising.

Sprenger will probably look after the fifty on Wednesday, with the second man doubtful. Brophy and Shaw will be the pair for the century. Entries for the distances are doubtful yet, but Marc Stein and Aubrey Shackell will be the likely starters in the 200, with Munroe Bourne and either Davis or Calhoun in the quarter.

Reg Wilson and Doug Cross in the backstroke, Joe Brabander and a doubtful man in the breast and Griffiths and French in the diving will round out the team. Sprenger, Bourne, Brophy and Shaw will make up the relay quartet.

The fifty was by far the best event of yesterday's meet. The field broke into two groups at the start, with Brophy, Stein and Shaw leaving the other three behind. Bob made a lovely turn and had a lead of about a yard on Shaw half-way back. The latter threatened, but could not quite catch the long-stroking Commerce freshman at the finish.

Strokes Contrast

The century was almost the same story over again, except that Shaw and Brophy had the tank to themselves this time. These two are a remarkable contrast in strokes, Brophy's chief fault being a twisting roll of his body; Shaw errs the other way in holding a straight position which makes his stroke stiff. The two kept together for the first three lengths, Brophy drawing out to a three yard lead in the last length.

The back and breaststroke events were poorly contested only two going in for one, and three for the other, and the times being slow. The diving was better, with Griffiths giving a polished exhibition of both elementary and advanced dives. He has practised little as yet, but has at least two good options, the one-and-a-half-forward, and the standing Molberg.

The time was only fair in the 200, being rather far below the college record of 2.18 3/5. No relay was held officially, but three teams were picked up, the winning squad doing 54 seconds for 100 yards.

The complete results follow:
50 yards free style:—1. R. Brophy, F.; 2. P. Shaw, S.; 3. M. Stein, F.
Time: 26 2/5 seconds. (McGill Record)
100 yards free style:—1. R. Brophy, F.; 2. P. Shaw, S. Time: 1 min. 2 1/5 secs.

200 yards free style:—1. M. Stein, F.; 2. C. Davis, S. Time: 2 mins. 39 2/5 secs.

50 yards backstroke:—1. D. Cross, S.; 2. Johnson, F. Time: 39 secs.

50 yards breaststroke:—1. M. Stein, F.; 2. H. Brophy, F.; 3. Shapiro, F. Time: 39 secs.

Diving:—1. H. Griffiths, S.; 2. P. French, S.; 3. J. R. MacBrien, F.

Final Score:—Freshmen 29 points, Sophomores 22 points.

R.M.C. AND C.N.R. PLAY TITLE GAME AT MOLSON FIELD TODAY

Students who journey up the hill to Molson Stadium this afternoon are assured of seeing a good football match as the gentleman cadets from R.M.C. tackle C.N.R. in the semi-final round of the intermediate rugby championships.

The redcoats are no strangers to McGill football fans, for it was that same team, early in the season, that gave Coach Forbes' senior squad a severe trouncing. The cadets have piled up a fine record this year, not having lost a game, while they have triumphed over Varsity, Queen's, and McMaster in convincing fashion. The last named outfit are highly rated in the intermediate circles, being coached by the former McGill mentor, Art Burridge, but last week the cadets took them into camp by 18-10.

Booth Will Kick

The railway boys are also known to McGill fans, as they were seen at Molson Stadium in a night game against M.A.A.A. seniors. Led by the crack toe artist, Clarry Booth, C.N.R. have also piled up an imposing record this season. On Thanksgiving weekend they held the Ottawa Roughriders to a nine all draw, and since then have triumphed over the Quebec Swimmers.

As the weatherman is predicting a dry field for this afternoon's tussle, it seems that the brunt of the attack may be through the air, as Booth, and Davoud will match feet. This same Davoud is rated as the smartest cadet kicker since Tremblin, and is quite capable of giving the railroad boys a great deal of trouble.

A large crowd of McGill supporters are expected to be on hand to cheer on the visitors, who have always proved staunch red backers whenever a game is played in Kingston.

The teams will line up as follows:

R.M.C.	Flying Wing	C.N.R.
Storms	Halbert

Davoud	Burton

Fencers Showing Steady Progress

Call Is Issued For New Men To Join Foil Artists

The members of the fencing club are showing steady improvement under the tuition of Coach Raimond. The older men are being taken in hand on Fridays and the individual coaching is giving them an opportunity to brush up on their few weak spots. McKergow, Harvie, Jellie, Bailie and other experienced men are turning out regularly and should give good account of themselves in both intercollegiate and home competitions.

Beginners Still Wanted

The recruits are also progressing favorably and each week sees a decided improvement in their strokes and style. They will be given the chance to show their wares in the tournament which will be conducted within the next few weeks. Their turnouts have been fairly regular and M. Raimond is sparing little effort

Arts photos may be seen in Bill Gentleman's office and orders for same will also be taken there.

Those who ordered copies of the Star photo taken at the Iberyville match may obtain them at Hay Finlay's office.

Alternate Forward Lines Ready For Next Hockey Game

Coach Bell May Test Complete Changes Against Columbus

STUDENT COUPON VALID

McGill's senior hockey squad, this year's surprise entry in the Q.A. H. A. Senior Group, spent another hour of hard practice on the Forum ice last night in preparation for their first home game of the season against the hard-checking Columbus aggregation on Monday night. Coach Bobby Bell had two full teams working out against each other for the entire hour, and both opposing forward lines gave Powers and McHugh plenty of work.

Coupon No. 11 will entitle all McGill students to see the redmen in action on Monday next against the Irish. The red and white hockeyists went off to a flying start by defeating Vics last Monday, and are ready to tear into Columbus.

Expect Large Crowd

A win for the redmen will place them on equal footing with M.A.A.A. last year's Allen Cup winners, who have drawn a bye this week-end. In all probability a large following of McGill supporters will travel to the Forum this Monday, especially since it will be McGill's first home game of the season.

Captain George McTeer will be seen in uniform against Columbus when the burly defenceman resumes his old post. He will team up with Bert McGillivray, while the veteran Powers will again do the netminding.

Alternate Lines Ready

Coach Bell will have two first string forward lines to inject into the fray from time to time. Both the Farquharson - Ward - Robertson and the Farmer - McGill - Doherty combination wing lines have been working out well in practice and have shown plenty of speed as well as effective combination. Nelson Crutchfield, a fast-stopping newcomer who showed up well against Vics, will be available for either defense or forward duty. He is a hefty built boy who can stickhandle, and he carries a great deal of speed.

All in all, those who journey to the west end ice emporium on Monday night need have no fear that a good battle will be in store. The McGill student fans will have their first opportunity via Coupon No. 11 of seeing the red puckmen aspirants for 1930 hockey honors, in action and it is expected that many a McGill yell will rock the Forum building.

McHugh, the second-best goaler in college, will be between the posts. Crutchfield and Craig, two hefty freshmen will form the outer guard, and Ward flanked by Farmer and G. Johnson will start on the forward line. Broome, Ebbitt, Carsley, Owen, Calder, and Bell will see action in the course of the game.

At the conclusion of the scheduled 30 games including on February 28th, there will be a play-off at the end of the season between the first and second clubs. It will be a two-game series and total goals will count. The schedule of games for 1930-31 follows:

RETURNS RO FOLD

STERLIN MacLEAN, former centre on the senior basketball quintet who is making a strong bid for the pivot position again.

Red Cagers Contest Positions on Squad

Church And Young Still Absent From Practices

WEALTH OF MATERIAL

UNDER the guiding hand of Coach Van Wagner, the aspirants for the intercollegiate and city league teams are fast rounding into shape. Don Young and Harry Church were still absent from yesterday's practice but it was fairly certain that the latter would join the cagers some time next week. The intentions of Don Young are still doubtful but next week should see him decide one way or the other.

The basketweavers have not let up on the fast pace they have set in the last few practices and flashes of fine basketball were constantly displayed at yesterday's scrimmage. MacLean, who had been absent last year from intercollegiate company, is showing ability at centre and should Young decide not to turn out he will most likely be called upon to fill the gap.

Wealth of Guards

Krukowski is a newcomer whose work on the defence has been more than satisfactory and he should make a strong bid for a berth on the intercollegiate squad. Moore and Rice,

THE SPORTS SPIEL

By suggesting that the system of amateur or poorly paid coaches for the senior rugby team is a bad policy, A. C. Cochrane, sports editor of The Varsity, University of Toronto undergraduate publication, has drawn the criticism of members of this year's blue team on his head. Bob Galloway, senior inside wing and secretary of the rugby club, and John Keith, captain of the seniors. In a joint letter see in the sports writer's claim a personal attack on Les Blackwell, who brought Varsity so near to the championship this year. In his own reply Cochrane denies this and explains that he finds fault only with the system.

He had originally charged that an offer had been made to Joe Breen last fall by Toronto athletic authorities, but that the present Western manager had found it "not worth his while" and further, that Mike Rodden had himself offered Varsity his services free for a year so that latent rugby talent should not go to waste. Both these statements are faintly denied by the players in their open letter.

It seems to us that there is right on both sides of this controversy, that as a matter of fact each represents a legitimate and widely-held point-of-view. For many years now Toronto has had a professed policy of amateur coaching, holding that the spirit thus engendered was preferable to the business-like attitude of players and officials under the professional system, even if championships did not fall to the team's lot as frequently as they might otherwise do. For many years, also, both the other teams in the league had professional coaches. Then Hughes left Queen's and Shag left McGill, and both had amateur coaches with favorable results. In fact, the year before Western entered the union, 1928, amateur coaches were the rule, and they brought McGill a championship.

But perhaps the best solution of the problem is to recognise frankly that rugby is a money-making undertaking, that as such it is very valuable to university athletics in general, and that it is an important medium of publicity. By placing it on a business foundation, it is not necessary to kill it as a game or as a spectacle; rather it should be patched up from every angle so that it is a very good spectacle. If there are to be crowds at all, why not big crowds? A winning team at least every few years is always acceptable to supporters, so why not employ a man who will make it his business to produce a winning team? Why not employ a professional coach who will supply the necessary fight which precedes scores?

Players frequently delight to serve professional coaches, as proteges of Shag and Hughes have always demonstrated, and as those of even Mike Rodden also show. Give the fans a break. last year's guards are given more than a chance to gain a position on the intercollegiate quintet. Coach Van Wagner has a wealth of material from which to pick his two line at yesterday's scrimmage and displayed pre-season form at garnering baskets. Moore, Calhoun, and Krukowski alternated on the defence, while Weber alternated with one of the forwards.
